

"When we build let us think that we build forever."

JOHN RUSKIN, 1849

I will include in volume I and II of PN...*

VANITIES

FLASHBACK: Vanity Fair, 1932

Bette Davis

Bette Davis was "one of the Bright Young People of the cinema" when Horst took this photograph. The saucer-eyed twenty-four-year-old had just finished her thirteenth film, 20,000 Years in Sing Sing (which one Vanity Fair staffer called 20,000 Years in Sing Sing). The language may be less melodic this month, when her daughter B. D. Hyman's kith-and-tell book, My Mother's Keeper, is published by William Morrow. Mother Goddard will doubtless give her side of B. D. dearest's story when her autobiographical What These Eyes Have Seen is published by Dutton in the fall.

at age 24.
I have seen about sixty of her
films —
all very exciting.*

With Kind Thoughts and Best Wishes for your Happiness
at Christmas and throughout the Coming Year

*Dear Robert,
Edith certainly appreciates
the many kind things you have done for her and enjoys having you folks come
to see her.
Best regards,
